The Spartans lived in the part of Southern Greece called Laconia. Sometimes people called them the Spartans and sometimes the Laconians. Those people were very brave and their way of life was very simple. One of their rules was that they should always speak very briefly (кратко) using no more words than were necessary. We often call a short answer laconic: that is such an answer as a Laconian could give.

There was a land called Macedonia in Northern Greece. It was ruled by the king Philip. Philip wanted to become the head of all Greece. He had a great army and conquered state after state. But he couldn't conquer Laconia. When Philip came to Laconia he sent a letter to the brave Spartans: "If I conquer your country, I will destroy your great city". After a day or two he was given the answer. When he opened the letter he found only one word in it. That word was "If".

Do you know what the two words taken from Australian native language by Russian and English are? Linguists say that the word "kangaroo" came into English as early as 1770 at the time of the first expedition of Captain Cook. "Boomerang" was taken later - about 1830. These words came into Russian from the Australian native language thanks to the expeditions of Miklukho-Maklay, a famous Russian explorer, whose discoveries made him a legend in his lifetime. And do you know who planted the first apple tree in Australia? It was the famous Captain Bligh of the Bounty ship. In 1787 some of the crew fought against Bligh's cruel discipline and put him and 18 sailors in a small boat and left them in the sea. The boat crossed 5,793 km of open sea and landed in Australia.

- The word kangaroo came into English after the first Captain Cook's expedition.

Script: Hello, everybody! Let me introduce myself. My name is Janet Orwell, I'm a traveller. Of course, I'm not a Miklukho-Maklay or Captain Cook, but I travel a lot and open new places for myself. When I was a little girl I dreamt of becoming a world famous explorer, but now I'm a doctor by profession and a traveller by heart. I enjoy travelling, learning interesting things and making friends, sometimes helping people, don't forget I'm a doctor. For example, I never knew why hurricanes have names. My Australian friend told me a story. There lived an Australian weatherman called Clement Wet Wragge. He named hurricanes after his neighbours with whom he quarrelled. Now each year the World Meteorological Organization prepares a list of girls' and boys' names in alphabetical order ready for future hurricanes. It's a funny fact, isn't it? You can learn lots of them meeting different people and visiting different countries. I think that a traveller is not a profession – it's just a way of life.

This land was discovered by the great Russian explorer Vitus Bering in 1741 when his ship crossed the strait between Russia and America and the first settlement was founded there. The strait was named after Bering and Alaska became a part of Russia. The name "Alaska" came from the Aleuts, the people who lived in those lands for a long time, and means "the native land". The first settlement became the capital of Alaska and got the name of New Archangelsk (now it is Sitka). But Alaska was sold to America in 1867. Five years later gold was discovered there. The life in Alaska at that time was described by Jack London in his books. And now Alaska is the largest state of the USA. Its capital is Anchorage and the 18th of October is Alaska Day, a state holiday which celebrates the date of official transfer of Alaska from Russia to the United States.
